GADC ANNOUNCES HEADQUARTERS PROJECT FOR GREENVILLE COUNTY

(Greenville County, SC) The Greenville Area Development Corporation (GADC) is pleased to announce that the Greenville Paper Converting & Distribution Corporation has selected Greenville County as the location for its corporate headquarters and distribution facility. Operating from 1 Pate Drive in Greenville, Greenville Paper Converting & Distribution will create 30 jobs and will make a $1,500,000 capital investment over a five-year period.

Greenville Paper Converting & Distribution Corporation was recently formed as a division of Loroco Industries located in Cincinnati that was founded in 1898. Since that time, it has grown and expanded to include affiliated facilities across the nation such as Greenville Paper Converting & Distribution Corporation that will be headquartered in Greenville, South Carolina. Greenville Paper Converting & Distribution Corporation provides a variety of services for the paper industry. The work at the new facility will include paper conversion and distribution of paper products. They will supply paper converters, carton manufacturers, and packaging companies in the Southeast.

“We would like to thank the Greenville Area Development Corporation and the SC Department of Commerce for assisting us in Greenville,” said Jim Lallathin, President of Greenville Paper Converting & Distribution Corporation. “We look forward to a prosperous future here in Greenville.”

Greenville Paper Converting & Distribution was a competitive search in many different communities. Greenville was the final choice of Greenville Paper Converting & Distribution due to its favorable business climate, its location, and the work done by the GADC and the S.C. Department of Commerce.

“Creating new jobs throughout South Carolina is priority one for this administration,” said Governor Mark Sanford. “We’re going to continue pushing pro-business reforms like income tax relief that will stimulate economic growth and improve our business climate, making it easier for Commerce and the folks at GADC to bring more jobs and more capital investment to the Upstate.”

“It is great to see new companies such as Greenville Paper Converting & Distribution Corporation make the decision to locate in Greenville,” said Phyllis Henderson, Chairwoman of Greenville County Council. “On behalf of Greenville County Council, I welcome them to Greenville and wish them well in the years to come.”

“We are extremely happy Greenville Paper Converting & Distribution Corporation has decided to locate in Greenville County. Greenville Paper Converting & Distribution’s selection of Greenville demonstrates the fact that we offer a world class business climate to prospective industries,” said Brent Clinkscale, Chairman of the Greenville Area Development Corporation.

The Greenville Area Development Corporation is a non-profit organization established by Greenville County Council to promote and enhance the economic growth and development of Greenville County.
