IT NETWORKING AND SECURITY FIRM LAUNCHES IN GREENVILLE COUNTY

Network Aces to offer range of IT services geared towards small businesses

GREENVILLE COUNTY, SC, March 16, 2010 — Convinced that Greenville County is “a great area to grow a business in,” Network Aces and the Greenville Area Development Corporation have announced the establishment of the new company’s operations in Greenville, South Carolina, effective immediately. The company’s launch includes the filling of 3 new jobs immediately, with the possibility of additions to come.

The company will focus on offering IT network support services and hardware designed to economically meet the needs of small and middle-market businesses, said William Pratt, a principal in the company.

“This area is tremendous for business and has a tremendous demand for networking, IT infrastructure, VoIP and security services,” said Pratt in explaining the company’s launch here. “We were very familiar with the Greenville and Upstate area, and had fallen in love with the quality of life and robust business environment. We see the sky as the limit for Network Aces in Greenville County.”

The new Greenville operation is located at 101 Verdae Boulevard, said Pratt. He sees the vibrant small and mid-market business presence in the Upstate as a natural for growing Network Aces’ business.

“We focus on developing customized, yet affordable, technology solutions for our clients, keeping their information systems up to speed so they can concentrate on running a profitable business,” said Pratt. “From desktop support to maintenance services and networking to security enhancement, we work around our clients’ schedules with onsite, after hours, emergency and even weekend service. We think there’s a real market for a customer-first IT firm, and we expect a steep growth curve for Network Aces in the Upstate.”

“Network Aces is a good example of a company whose IT capabilities and talents fill an important niche here in the Upstate,” said Mike Buitter, Chairman of the Greenville Area Development Corporation Board. “Smaller businesses are the lifeblood of American business, and Network Aces is entrepreneurial, innovative and growth-oriented. They’ll be a great addition to Greenville County and South Carolina.”
